LONG TO FIRST VOTERS. THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ON POLITICAL DUTY.

Things That the Young Man Who Casts His First Ballot This Year Should Take Into Consideration—A Summary of the Political Issues of the Presidential Campaign. CHICAGO, Oct. 7.-The Hon. John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy, issued to-day through the National Republican Committee Headquarters in this city an address which is in the nature of an explanation to a first voter of what he must consider before casting his ballot on Nov. 6. Among other things Secretary Long says to the first voter that the problems

set before him are too grave for snap judgment. secretary Long says: "He must decide whether, being now on a tidal wave of prosperity brought about as the result of Republican principles, he is justified in promoting the supremacy of Democratic principles which were responsible for the years national depression which characterized the recent Administrations of the Democratio

"He must decide whether he favors honest and stable money which the Republican party insured by its enactment of the gold standard, debased money, the sure consequence of the free silver heresy which the Democratio party specifically advocates. He must decide whether he shall support the Administration which carried the nation through a successful war and added to its jurisdiction new possessions which his country's intelligence and humanity will develop to the enjoyment of stable institutions and local self-government, or shall repudiate the victories he and his brothers in arms won at Santiago and Manila and abandon to anarchy, or to the sway of foreign Governments, the islands which are a sacred trust on the American people.

"If he live in the country, he sees the product of the farm bringing a higher price than it did before the Republican party gained control of the national administration. If he live in the manufacturing town, he sees the doors of the factories open and hears the hum of their business works. In all walks of life he finds that abor is receiving a higher wage for its output, and, carrying his investigation still further, he discovers that his wage has a greater purhe discovers that his wage has a greater purchasing power. If he desire to enlarge the scope of his investigation and ascertain the extent of the prosperity enjoyed by the whole country he will examine the statistics of exports and imports. He will learn that in 1894, the most prosperous year of Mr. Cleveland's administration, the balance of trade in favor of the United States was $237,145,950, while in the last fiscal year the balance of trade in favor of the United States was $544,471,701, or nearly two and a half times as great.

in the last listed year the balance of trade in favor of the United States was $544,471,701, or nearly two and a half times as great.

"He will find that the total commerce of the United States for the past fiscal year surpasses by $317,729,260 that of any preceding year, and that for the first time in our history it exceeds $2,000,000,000.

"Turning to the statistics relating to American trade with Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, he will find a condition equally satisfactory. The most prosperous year since 1800 for American export trade with Cuba ander Spanish sovereignty was 1893, when the value of exports to the island was $24,157,108. In 1900 it reached $20,513,613. Porto Rico paid $2,297,538 for American exports in 1800, $2,856,003 in 1802 and $4,404,431 in 1900. The Hawaiian Islands received goods from the United States in 1800 valued at $4,711,417 and in 1900 goods at $13,500,148. The export rade of this country with the Philippine Islands in 1800 amounted to $122,276; for the last fiscal year it amounted to $2,840,449.

"In spite of the manifest advantages of the gold standard law the Democratic party has rigorously denounced it, and has asserted its purpose to bring about its repeal as promptly as it is able to do so.

"The intelligent young voter will not neglect rigorously denounced it, and has asserted its purpose to bring about its repeal as promptly sait is able to do so.

"The intelligent young voter will not neglect to calculate the effect of the overturning of a aw which is in great measure responsible for the prosperous condition of the country to-day, and that has made the United States a creditor nation. Nor will he forget to consider that the success of the party that stands for a principle that involves a reduction of the value of the nation's unit of money in the markets of the world will of itself cause vast injury to business interests and incidentally to himself.

"He will see that no other than a patriotic motive guided the President in recognizing the extension of American sovereignty over Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. He will feel, as his forefathers did, that expansion is the natural outcome of growth. His memory will recall that Mr. Bryan personally supported the ratification of the treaty of Paris by which American sovereignty was extended over Porto Rico and the Philippines.

"He has been told that we should at once grant the Filipinos self-government and establish a protestorate over the islands when he knows there are eighty-four tribes in the slands and that millions of money and thousands of men would be necessary to support them against the assaults of the others, and that the war-making power which rests under the Constitution in the hands of his representatives would be transferred to an irresponsible people whom we would be obliged to uphold."

RAILROAD MEN IN SESSION. 1,200 Delegates of the Leading Unions Begin a Meeting in Toledo.

Tolepo, Ohio, Oct. 7 .- One of the most mportant and largely attended meetings of ratiroad union officials and leading members over held in this part of the country was held here to-day. There are from 1,000 to 1,200 selegates present, besides many women idenaffed with the axuiliary organizations. One shiect of the meeting is to secure a harmonious and concerted action on the part of the organizations, such as the sordactors, engineers, firemen, switchmen and trainmen, and another is to take up the proposed establishment of a Railroad Men's Pension Fund. The latter will be considered connerrow. Among those present are: P. H. Arthur, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, E. P. Sargent, Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, E. P. Sargent, Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; E. E. Dlark, Chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, R. S. Kaylor, State Railway Commissioner; Mrs. R. M. Moore, President Ladies Auxiliary, D. R. C. Mrs. Cassil of the Firemen's Auxiliary, Mrs. George Wilson, President of the Volunteer delief Association. Two or three special trains prought great loads of people from the Baltimore and Ohio, Lake Shore, Hocking Valley, Wabash and other lines. The spactous hall was packed to the dome, the galleries beling crowded and nany turned away. Addresses were made by the sers, Arthur, Sargent, Clark and others. There is some talk of a general organization povering all the bodies, but the main object of the meeting appears to be to-night to formulate plans for concerted work. Politics is sarefully eschewed and forbidden by common understanding. onductors, engineers, firemen, switchmen

Down the street came two very swagger young that party in Denver, have formed a women. Mr. Fox and Mr Brown are neither of them young, but they are appreciative. They noticed the two young women and the two young women noticed them. Strangely enough, and to the great surprise of the Californians, the swagger young women approached them. One of them had with her a most de-lightful smile.

them. One of them had with her a most delightful smile.

Well, I do declare, "she exclaimed, "if here isn't Mr. Fox. How do you do?"

Mr. Fox was too polite to ask embarrassing questions. He told the young woman he did very well and hoped she did. She said she did but that she hoped to do better. While Mr. Fox chatted with her Mr. Brown was getting along nicely with the other woman, and all four strolled around into Madison avenue toward Forty-first street.

The progress of the conversation led Mr. Fox's young woman to seize him by the lapels of the coat and shake him playfully. Then the girls remembered engagements and said good-by and away they went in opposite directions.

Faintly there came suspicion into Mr. Fox's ind. He felt for his wallet in his inside coat ocket. The wallet, which had had between 00 and $500 in it, was sone.

"Hey!" he howled at his girl, and he chased her while Mr. Brown put out after the other one. Mr Fox nabbed his a Forty-first street, but Mr. Brown's got away. A policeman took the captive to the West Thirtieth street station. There she said she was May Brooks of London, stopping temporarily at 226 West Thirty-sixth street. She denied having taken Mr. Fox's wallet and the money was not found on her, She had $90 in bills stowed away and around her neck a chamois bag containing some valuable diamonds. She was locked up. Mr. Brown's girl is supposed to have the wallet. "I'd a'caught her," said Mr. Brown, apologetically to the sergeant, "but I've got tender feet.

SUICIDE ONCE SUED CORBIN ESTATE. Matilda Nelson Was the Woman Who Poisoned Herself at the Grand.

The young woman who committed suicide in the Grand Hotel on Saturday night by swallowing carbolic acid, was identified early yesterday morning as Matilda Nelson, who in 1896 brought suit for $50,000 against the estate of Austin Corbin. Her identity became known through some of the papers in her pocket book. There were clippings from newspapers giving a description of the life of Austin Corbin; some pawn tickets bearing the name of Matilda Nelson, and a receipt for $100 signed by Howe & Hummel, showing that that firm had accepted th...t amount from her as a retainer.

Mr. Howe said last night that he had a slight that amount from her as a retainer.

Mr Howe said last night that he had a slight recollection of the case. He said that in 1890 Matilida Nelson, who had been employed as a nurse in Mr. Corbin's house, had come to the firm and had told them that Mr. Corbin shortly before his death had told her that he had invested $50,000 in her name. After his ceath, the executors of the estate could not find any trace of the investment. She then brought suit against the estate for that amount. The lawyers for the executors made answer alleging blackmail. The case has never been tried.

At the Coroner' office are four letters that the woman wrote just before committing suicide. Three of them are sealed. One of these is addressed to Ira Anna Lillie Carlson, Ivenstorg, Sweden, while the other two are simply addressed 'Dear Brother' and 'Dear Sister.' One of three women who called at the Morgue last night said that Matilida Nelson for the past eighteen months had been threatening to kill herself. She had formerly lived at 4 West Thirty-second street, but early in August had moved to 17 West Thirty-second street. She disappeared from this address the last week in August and was not seen again until about two weeks ago, when she went to 20 West Thirty-first street. There she began to talk again about killing herself. She had a sister Lena, who was employed in one of the departments at Washington, and her brother Alexis was a conductor on a Pennsylvania Railroad train.

SUCCESSFUL STRIKE AT WEST POINT. The Walters of the Cadet Mess Demanded $5

More a Month. Which Was Granted. WEST POINT, Oct. 7 .- About an hour before the regular dinner hour last night the waiters of the cadet mess, twenty-two in number, went on strike. At that hour the waiters appointed two of their number to wait upon Major Hal. Treasurer of the cadet commissary, and informed him that unless their respective salaries were increased $5 a month each all would quit the daing hall instantly. The existing scale wa: $20 a month. The walters all had put on their coats and hats and were in readiness in the event of an unfavorable response to their appeal promptly to desert the mess and return to their homes in Highland Falls The additional number of cadets neces sitates, it is alleged, a considerable amount of

When Major Hall was apprised of the situ-When Major Hall was apprised of the situation be was almost dumfounded, and the fact that the cadets were to entertain at dinner the members of the visiting football team made the incident additionally unpleasant for the commissary department. Major Hall asked for time to consuit with Col. Mills, Superintendent of the academy, which was granted, and on the matter being presented to the superintendent he ordered that the additional sum demanded by the waiters be paid. The difficulty was adjusted in time to serve dinner to the cadets and their friends. to the cadets and their friends.

A strike was also on at the canteen, but was compromised. Steward J. H. Prentiss, however, resigned and his resignation has been accepted. Mr. Prentiss has been steward of the canteen for the past eight years.

FREIGHT HANDLERS STRIKE.

Central Vermont Steamer Mohawk Unable to Unload at New London for Several Hours. New London, Oct. 7 .- The Central Vermont line steamer Mohawk was at her wharf here several hours with a cargo from New York ready to be transferred to cars and sent north. Over one hundred freight handlers, all members of the local union, 75 per cent. all members of the local union, 75 per cent. being Poles and the remainder Irish, refused to work on account of the small pay and irregular hours and the company was unable to compromise with them. About forty Italian laborers arrived from New York on the 6 o'clock express train to-night and were put to work in place of the strikers.

Soon after the Italians arrived the strikers assembled at Union Hall and evidently held a spirited meeting, as cheers could be heard at intervals through the open windows. After the meeting adjourned the strikers wended with the crowd which had congregated there, but did not attempt to make and disturbances.

in the island the people were to be merchants.

Mr. Adee enclosed the copy of the letter from Attorney General Russell to President McKinley in reply to the charges. Mr. Russell wrote that the charge that he had ordered any arrests was utterly ainfounded. He left such matters to the municipal authorities.

Regarding the playisional currency, he said that no doubt many poor people were victimized by merchants and others since the American currency went into use. This was uncarrency went into use.
